Excess Casualty Insurance for Energy Construction

Helping safeguard against substantial liabilities and unforeseen events, BCS excess casualty insurance offers higher limits and custom coverage for energy construction projects.

Why Do You Need Construction Excess Casualty Insurance for Your Energy?

Whether you're building a wind farm or a refinery, BCS has the expertise and experience to provide coverage solutions for your energy projects. For businesses engaged in constructing wind, solar, and utility projects, Berkley Construction Solutions' excess casualty insurance is a strategic asset offering:

Comprehensive Protection: Energy construction projects often involve intricate processes and cutting-edge technology. With innovation comes risk. Our excess casualty insurance solutions, written on a follow form basis, are designed to provide continuity of coverage.

Higher Limits for Enhanced Protection: The legal environment is volatile, and the financial stakes are high. We offer significant limits — up to $25 million — ensuring your business is adequately protected against costly, unexpected events.

Dedicated Construction Claims Expertise: Construction claims are big and require expert oversight. That's why we handle our claims in-house rather than via a third-party provider. Our direct-handled approach ensures continuity, clarity and efficiency which are all critical components in managing claims in a volatile and uncertain environment.
